

Book Review Template University

Ms. Alice Scent

Date: November 16, 2055

Book Title	The Great Gatsby
Author	Francis Scott Key Fitzgerald
Publisher	Charles Scribner's Son
Format	Print, eBook, Audiobook, etc.
Page Count	208
Publication Year	1925
Genre	Novel, Fiction, and Tragedy

Synopsis

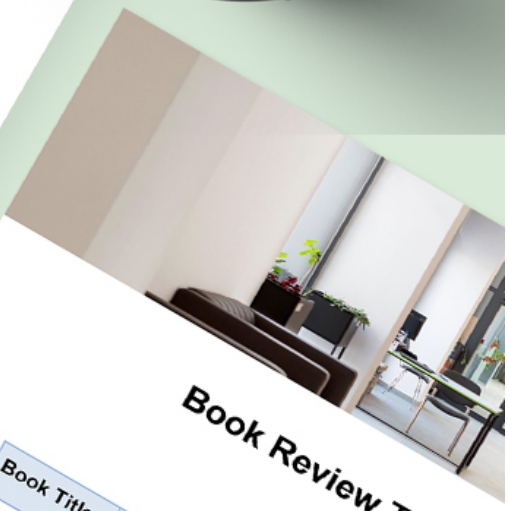

F. Scott Fitzgerald's novel, The Great Gatsby, follows Jay Gatsby, a man who orders his life around one desire: to be reunited with Daisy Buchanan, the love he lost five years earlier. Gatsby's quest leads him from poverty to wealth, into the arms of his beloved, and eventually to death. Published in 1925, The Great Gatsby is a classic piece of American fiction. It is a novel of triumph and tragedy, noted for the remarkable way Fitzgerald captured a cross-section of American society.

Book Review and Evaluation

reat Gatsby is in many ways similar to Romeo and Juliet, yet I believe that it is so ore than just a love story. It is also a reflection on the hollowness of a life of Both stories are obsessed with controlling time: Juliet wants to extend her s her future prospects with Romeo are bleak and Gatsby intends to create a ture by restoring the past. This leads Gatsby to say his most famous line e the past? Why, of course, you can." I could very much relate to this - en many moments where I've wished that I could go back to the past and e, for it was a better place.

o and Juliet, Fitzgerald's writing is almost like a work of poetry, with lliance creating a rich and lush rhythm that you can almost tap your ns are jarringly, magnificently beautiful so it almost made my heart eo and Juliet, the characters in The Great Gatsby are in d very hard to sympathize with. But that is the beauty of the Daisy Buchanan! Of course, you hate Tom! You even begin hom it is not enough for Daisy to say that she loved him,

Book Review Templat

Ms. Alice Scent

Book Title	The Great Gatsby
Author	Francis Scott Key Fitzgerald
Publisher	Charles Scribner's Son
Format	Print, eBook, Audiobook, etc.
Page Count
Publication Year
Genre	No Trag

Synopsis

F. Scott Fitzgerald's novel, The Great Gatsby, follows Jay Gatsby, a man w his life around one desire: to be reunited with Daisy Buchanan, the love he years earlier. Gatsby's quest leads him from poverty to wealth, into the arms beloved, and eventually to death. Published in 1925, The Great Gatsby is a c piece of American fiction. It is a novel of triumph and tragedy, noted for the remark way Fitzgerald captured a cross-section of American society.

Book Review and Evaluation

The Great Gatsby is in many ways similar to Romeo and Juliet, yet I believe that it is so much more than just a love story. It is also a reflection on the hollowness of a life of leisure. Both stories are obsessed with controlling time: Juliet wants to extend her present, as her future prospects with Romeo are bleak and Gatsby intends to create a beautiful future by restoring the past. This leads Gatsby to say his most famous line "Can't change the past? Why, of course, you can." I could very much relate to this there have been many moments where I've wished that I could go back to the past and just remain there, for it was a better place.

Similarly to Romeo and Juliet, Fitzgerald's writing is almost like a work of poetry, with waves of literary brilliance creating a rich and lush rhythm that you can almost tap your foot to. The descriptions are jarringly, magnificently beautiful so it almost made my heart ache.

However, unlike in Romeo and Juliet, the characters in The Great Gatsby themselves very flawed and very hard to sympathize with. But that is the be book. Of course, you hate Daisy Buchanan! Of course, you hate Tom! Y to slightly dislike Gatsby, to whom it is not enough for Daisy to say

